Introduction

We are pleased to present this edition of the Saskatchewan Women's Directory

This Directory is designed to serve several purposes:

- to provide a ready source of information about services of interest to women;

- to provide a listing of women's organizations currently active in the province;

- to increase referral and communication between groups;

- to point out organizations women can contact to become involved; and,

- to inspire women with the diversity of activity taking place within the province.

A sincere effort has been made to include services and organizations from all areas of Saskatchewan - rural, northern and urban. In addition to the basic organizational description and main contact areas, the Regional Addresses provide lists of services and organizational representatives located throughout the provice.

This Directory is organized according to subject area, and we have attempted to present the information in an accessible and logical order. We hope that you will find it useful and that you will share it with your friends, clients and co-workers.

The world of organizations and services is a dynamic one. We have attempted to ensure that the information contained in this Directory is as accurate as possible, yet, every week there are new developments as organizations form and change. Your corrections or suggestions would be appreciated. Please contact the Status of Women Office at the address on the inside cover.

The Overeaters Anonymous recovery program is patterned after that of Alcoholics Anonymous. AA's twelve steps and twelve traditions are used changing only the words "alcohol" and "alcoholic" to "food" and "compulsive overeater". Personal stories attest that the twelve-step program of recovery works as well for compulsive overeaters as it does for alcoholics. Through meetings, participants share their experience, strength and hope in order to work towards recovery.

There are more than 270 housing authorities in southern Saskatchewan that manage social housing within their community. Each housing authority is independently managed and has a board of directors and a manager. Most of the social housing in Saskatchewan is administered through community-based housing authorities. The four largest cities report directly to Saskatchewan Housing Corporation. The remaining southern Saskatchewan housing authorities receive management support through six Territory Offices. In northern Saskatchewan, local housing authorities and non-profit groups have been established to manage the housing units.

Is a national organization comprised of over 170 member agencies servicing more than 300 communities, and is the leading child and youth serving organization providing mentoring programs across Canada. For over 80 years, they have made a difference in the lives of young people by providing a friend where one is needed. Men and women (age 18 or older) give of their time to become one-to-one mentors to a youngster who can greatly benefit from having an adult role model to look up to. In response to the different needs and demands of children, youth, and volunteers alike, they have created new programs to fit our changing society. Couples for Kids, Cross Gender Matching, Internet Mentoring, In-School Mentoring, BIG/bunch and Kids 'n' Kops group programs (for those kids on the waiting lists), and the new Life Skills Program all provide a variety of opportunities for volunteering and support to children and youth.

VIOLENCE AGAINST WOMEN

The listings in this Section are grouped under the following headings:

- Shelters
- Safe Homes
- Second Stage Housing
- Crisis Services
- Counselling
- National Organizations
- Provincial Organizations
- Regional Organizations

Definitions

Abuse

Abuse can be physical, sexual or verbal. It includes economic abuse (control of money). It also includes psychological abuse. This may involve "put-downs", persistent threats or forcing a woman to witness violence against her children, other relatives, friends, pets or cherished possessions. The abuser can be a boyfriend, husband, live-in lover, ex-husband or ex-lover.

Sexual Assault

Sexual assault is any form of unwanted or forced sexual activity. It includes date rape, sexual assault within marriage, sexual harassment, assault by a stranger, and child sexual abuse.

Shelters

Transition houses, interval houses and safe shelters are places where a woman and her children can go if she has been abused physically or psychologically, or threatened with violence by her spouse or partner. They provide short-term living accommodation and crisis counselling. Counselling and support services assist women in re-establishing themselves after leaving the transition house. They may provide counselling referrals to women not needing to stay at the shelter. They frequently provide outreach educational services.

Street addresses for shelters are confidential. Please confirm that there is available space prior to making referrals. Contact the shelter in your region regarding appropriate referral procedures.

Financial Assistance

Saskatchewan Community Resources & Employment
1920 Broad Street
Regina, SK
S4P 3V6

See Community Resources & Employment Regional Addresses under Child and Family Service on page 36.

Saskatchewan Assistance Program (SAP): Provides basic income support services for families and individuals who may not have sufficient resources to meet their basic living costs. Supplementary health benefits may be provided by the Department of Health. Community Resources and Employment staff work with each applicant to develop a case plan to move towards financial self-sufficiency. Clients may also be referred to training and employment opportunities. For additional information, please call toll free 1-866-221-5200, TTY 1-866-995-0099, or contact the nearest Community Resources and Employment Regional Office.

Saskatchewan Child Benefit (SCB): Provides a monthly benefit to assist lower income families with the cost of raising children. It is administered on behalf of the province by the Canada Revenue Agency and benefits are combined with the Canada Child Tax Benefit. Eligibility is determined by the amount of family income reported on the previous year's income tax return. For additional information, please call toll free, 1-888-286-0399.

Saskatchewan Employment Supplement (SES): Provides a monthly payment that supplements income earned by lower income parents from wages, self-employment and child and/or spousal maintenance payments. SES assists parents with the child-related costs of working. For additional information, please call toll-free 1-888-488-6385 or 1-877-696-7546.

Family Health Benefits (FHB): Administered by Saskatchewan Health, it provides supplementary health benefits to help lower income working families meet the health needs of their children. Families receiving the SCB or SES are eligible to receive FHB, as well as others with incomes below specified levels. For additional information, please call toll free 1-800-266-0695.

Child Day Care Subsidy: Assists low-income families with cost of accessing licensed child care. The program subsidizes the parent portion of child care costs, making care more affordable for parents. For additional information, please call toll free 1-800-667-7155 or in Regina at (306) 787-4114.

Transitional Employment Allowance (TEA): Provides short-term, flat-rate benefits to people participating in the Jobs First pre-employment program, as well as those making the transition to employment or some other source of income. Application and all reporting is completed by telephone through the Provincial Contact Centre at 1-866-221-5200 or in Regina at 798-0660. TTY service is available at 787-1065 or 1-866-995-0099.

Provides an opportunity for the people of Saskatchewan to save for their retirement. Any person between the ages of 18 and 69 can join and contribute to the Plan. The Plan particularly benefits those who do not have access to a private pension plan or who want to supplement their retirement income.

People do not need to have earned income or income from wages or a business to contribute to the Plan. Contributions and their accumulated earnings are tax sheltered until received as pension income. The money is professionally managed and earns a competitive rate of return each year. The funds which accumulate assure each member of income for their retirement.

Plan members come from a variety of backgrounds - small business owners and employees, homemakers, farmers, part-time employees and students.

Was first established in 1976 as the Saskatchewan Indian Community College. It is governed by Saskatchewan's First Nations but also operates within the Saskatchewan provincial post-secondary system. On July 1, 2000, provincial legislation in the Province of Saskatchewan recognized SITT as a post-secondary institution. This will assist First Nations students to transfer credits to other post-secondary institutions and to have their certificates and diplomas recognized as the provincial level. SITT initially delivered adult academic upgrading, introductory skills and trades, and basic management training and has evolved to include certified technical, vocational and trade programming.

Employment and Training

Canada-Saskatchewan Career & Employment Services

Saskatchewan Community Resources and Employment
Toll Free: (800) 597-8278

There are 20 Canada-Saskatchewan Career and Employment Services (CSCES) offices located throughout the province. They offer training, employment programs and a range of services to meet the needs of job seekers and employers.

Staff will help job seekers learn where the jobs are; what types of work they want to do; and help improve skills and employment prospects. Staff will help employers recruit and screen workers; post job vacancies; and address skills shortages through training programs. They work with employers to link the abilities of Saskatchewan's workers with the needs of their business.

Offers a variety of resources, including written and electronic materials on resume writing and occupations; counsellor-assisted career planning; workshops; and computerized services, such as Internet access, CD Rom software and videos. Information is available on a range of skills training and employment programs including apprenticeship, basic education, literacy, and income support programs. The offices have computers to access the career, employment and labour market information website called SaskNetWork (www.sasknetwork.gov.sk.ca).

The online job service on SaskNetWork is SaskJobs. It's the most comprehensive provincial system in Canada to provide job seekers and employers with online help finding work and workers. Employers can: search resumes of people looking for work and match them to the skills they are looking for; and advertise their job openings. Job seekers can: advertise their resume, search for jobs and match their skills to current job openings; look for work by location or region in the province, type of work, or both; and listen to available job listings over the phone through an interactive voice response system.

There are three types of options:

Workbased Training for the Unemployed:
Designed for unemployed residents of Saskatchewan. Involves on-the-job training, with wage subsidies up to 50%, when the training leads to full-time sustainable employment.

Institutional Quick Response Training:
Training through recognized public training institutions designed for unemployed Saskatchwan residents or unemployed youth between the ages of 18-25, who have been out of school for at least one year, to provide them with the skills to meet immediate industry needs.

Sector Partnerships:
Designed to assist industry sectors to identify current and future skilled employment needs, identify strategies to address those needs, and to develop effective partnerships in human resource planning and skills training. For more information, contact your nearest JobStart/Future Skills Training Consultant.
